

SPECIALITIES OF REGIONAL CUISINE

Traditional food of North Moravia and Silesia is known and popular all over the country. It is said that love finds its way through stomach. If you really want to fall in love with this hospitable country, taste some of the region's culinary delights.

SLIVOVICE

It is a delicious plum brandy. This drink with its characteristic smell is full of energy, with its incomparable contribution to good health and good spirits. It should be drunk with a bit of good homemade bacon or bratwurst with excellent fresh bread

STUFFED GOOSE - PLNĚNÁ HUSA

It used to be the dish traditionally eaten on special occasions. Cooked with love and served with dumplings and sauerkraut, it will become a concert for your taste buds.

KYSELICA SOUP - VALAŠSKÁ KYSELICA

One can hardly imagine the Moravian cuisine without soups. Taste the real Kyselica soup, of which main ingredients are sauerkraut, potatoes and bratwurst. The fresh cream is used for soup thickening. At some restaurants for gourmets the soup may be served in a fresh loaf of Czech bread.

FRGÁL

The huge Wallachian sweet tarts of delicious taste are known as frgál. They are made with poppy, curd and pears - these ones are the most popular. It is interesting to note that the today's used name "frgál" formerly meant the badly-made or burnt cake.

ONDRÁŠ STEAK - ŘÍZEK ONDRÁŠ

The dishes made of potatoes are typical for our cuisine. You certainly will not resist a saucy egg-and-potato paste crumb pork cutlet with cheese and ham.

OTHER REGIONAL SPECILAITIES

ŠTRAMBERSKÉ UŠI - sweet with an interesting legend of cutting of ears during Turkish incursions in the area

STRYKY - potato pancakes griddled on a so-called "blacha" ("blacha" is a hotplate, without oil). They are served with cream or cracklings or mixed eggs and bacon according to eater taste

BRYNDZA - sheep cheese very much typical for the Wallachian region

KLOBÁSNIKY - sausage scalloped in beer dough is a delicious speciality from the Karviná region
